JACK SON'S PATENT ANNUNCIATOR, OR HOTE Telegraph.—An elegant and useful inschine, a substitute for bells as formacily in use. This invention has, invariably, received the first premium whenever presented for competition, having received the gold medial at the American Institute, a sliver medial at the Boston Fair, and diplomas where medials have been previously awarded it. For its superior performance, we beg to refer to marrly all the leading first class hoths in the Crited States. We present the following tentimentals of persons who have had great experience in bell manging, the use of and the putting to of Annunciator, or Bell Telegraph. I her to state that I have sited them up in many first class hotels in various parts of the Union, and extensively in this city—that they have given all the satisfaction that possibly could be expected—that I know of no machine that works we correctly in all its parts, and with so much simplicity. Its elegant appearance, as well as its general cutifity, warrant me in recommending is to hotel proprietors and other, as the most perfect Annunciator, or Bell Telegraph now in use.

Respectfully, yours.

THOMAS CHALMERS, Hell Hanger, a Mercer street.

Gent:—For the last three years, I have used Jackson's Patent Annunciator, or the last three years, I have used Jackson's Patent Annunciator of the telegraph now in use.

The connections of this road are such as to secure for it an ample amount of husiness: it unites at Welden with the railroad to Wilnington, 160 miles in length, which has just been re-laid with a heavy T rail; it unites at South Gaston, with the railroad to Raleigh. So miles long, which is also about to be re-laid with a heavy T rail.

At South Gaston, it will receive the immense productions of the extensive and fertile valley of the Roanoke, which are brought to that point by the Roanoke Navigation Company, who have expended over four hundred thousand deliars in improving the havigation of the Roanoke and its tristataries.

The harbor of Norfolk and Portsmouth is well known to be one of the best in the United States, and will thus be connected by the Seaboard and Roanoke Railroad and its connecting lines, with an ample extent of territory; which will insure to the road an abundant business.

A map, exhibiting these connections, showing, also, other lines now in rapid course of construction, by which a continuous line of railway will soon be extended from Norfolk to Mobile and New Orleans, on the sonth, and to the Valley of the Mississippi, at Remphis, on the west, may be estained of the undersigned.

FOUR PAYS LATER.

The Complete Success of the Insurrection in Portugal, and the Flight of Thomar.

THE FOURTH OF MAY IN FRANCE. ANOTHER MINISTERIAL CRISIS IN ENGLAND. ADVANCE IN COTTON.

Improvement in Breadstuffs. OUR EUROPEAN CORRESPONDENCE. &c., &c., &c.

The United States mail steamship Franklin, Capt. J. A. Wootton, arrived at this port at halfpast size o'clock yesterday morning. She brings over one hundred passengers, and an excellent freight of general merchandise, principally from France.

The Franklin left Havre on the 6th of May, and Cowes Roads at half-past 4 P. M., on the 7th -she has, thesefore, made the run from England in eleven days and fenerteen hours. The American mail steamer Washington, Capt. G. W. Floyd, from this port, arrived off Cowes on the 3d instant, in thirteen days and eight hours, and, after landing mails and passengers, proceeded on her voyage to Bremen. The royal mail steamship Africa, reached the Mersey on the 4th instant, after a run of ten days, thirteen hours and forty-five minutes. We have received, by the Franklin, files of London and Paris journals to the latest dates, together with our usual correspondence from various parts of Europe. We are also in possession of the London Times of the 7th instant, received at Southampton by special express for this steamer. The news is of four days later date than that brought by the Cambria to Boston. Our thanks are due to Mr. W. W. Hincken, the gentlemanly purser of the Franklin, for the prompt delivery of our despatches.

The news by the Africa and Washington gave some stability to the Liverpool cotton market, and en the 5th of May five thousand bales were sold at prices nearly one-eighth of a penny above those obtained at our previous dates. On the 6th, the sales amounted to four thousand bales, with rather less offering, at the improved quotations.

The Havre cotton market, on the 6th, was dull-sales, 500 bales, with prices rather more regular. The weather in England was cold and unfavorable, and resembled March and February rather than the blythe and merry month of May. The corn market, at Marklane, in consequence, was steady, at the previous rates. Flour was firmly held, while floating cargoes of foreign wheat and ladian corn were eagerly inquired for.

The accounts of the state of trade in the provinces describe, in most cases, a further depression. At Manchester, however, there were signs that if confidence could be felt as to the reaction in cotton having reached its lowest point, an active foreign demand might speedily be anticipated. Reports from Rotterdam and Amsterdam produce markets allude to business being rather better. Letters from Hamburg and Autwerp also speak of increased activity.

The English funds were inactive and prices unchanged, Consols for money being quoted 964 to 96 2-5. Exchequer bills, 37 to 52 premium.

American Six per Cents were quoted at Hamburg, on the 3d instant, at 106; a 106; Mary-

The returns of the Board of Trade for the month ending the 6th May presented very favorable re-

The defeat of the British ministry on the for one year only, instead of three years, had not led to the resignation of Lord John Russell and his colleagues. In the House of Commors, on the 5th instant, Lord John Russell stated the course the government proposed to take with regard to the dverse vote of the House. His Lordshap, therefore, announced that the cabinet would consent to a full and free inquiry into the principle upon which direct taxation should be imposed upon the property of the country. This statement gave great satisfaction, because the public saw, in the appointment of a committee for this purpose, the first step towards a removal of the income tax, or, at all events, to a more fair and equitable method of levying it upon incomes of a fleeting and precarious na-ture. By the London Times of the 7th, we observe that the ministry had suffered a fresh defeat on the previous evening, but still cling to office with proverbial tenacity.

The Great Exhibition appears to be triumphantly successful. On the 3d May the Queen and Prince Albert paid a private visit to the building and remained for two hours, during which time they were engaged in examining the display of jewelry, and gold, and silversmitha' work. During the two days that the price of admission was £1 each, the amount taken daily was between $2,500 and $2,000. The demand for season tickets still continued, and several hundred of these tickets at £3 25, each were sold daily. On Monday, the 5th instant, the price of admission fell to five shillings, and in consequence, the receipts at the doors, on that day, rose to nearly $7,000—upwards of 6,000 persons having paid for admittance. The financial success of the Exhibition, therefore, promises to be as great as its warmest supporters could desire, and hopes were entertained that not only would the whole undertaking pay, but that after the discharge of every liability, the Crystal Palace would remain an acceptable present to the country for whatever useful public purposes its peculiar construction qualifies it to fulfil. The London Times states that hitherto the unpropitious thate of the weather had had a powerful influence in checking the influx of visitors to the Metropolis; but as rain, hail, and raw cold winds will, doubtless, soon give way before the approaching footsteps of summer, all the world will then be hurrying to Hyde Park, to throng the immense avenues of the Industrial Conservatory. The latest official return of packages received at the building give the total number of foreign puckages at 9,968, of which 920 were from the United States. There were, besides, LISI packages from the British colonies. The different juries had commenced their labors and attention was being directed to the arrangements for a proper ceremony of a brilliant character, at the distribution of prizes. It was hoped the Queen would be present. Other subjects, also, were beginning to engross attention. A grand entertainment was talked of, to be given by the local committees to the commissioners of foreign powers and a banquet, on a still grander scale, was contemplated, at which the English exhibition, and the interest regarding it seemed to be on the increase.

There is important intelligence from Portugal. The retish mail steampship Montrose arrived at Southampton, on the 4th instant, with accounts from Liebon of the Repub and $2,000. The demand for season tickets still continued, and several hundred of those tickets at be a failure. The intended Bonapartist banquest in the suburbs, was prohibited by the authorities. The French funds had improved a little, but no progress had been made towards a solution of the difficult and intricate questions now agitating France, regarding a revision of the constitution and a prolengation of the presidential term of Louis Napoleon.

Advices from Berlin, under date of 3d of May, state that the King of Prussia had left the capital for Schwerin. The Prime Ministers of Prussia and Austria were to be present at the conclusion of the Dresden conferences and summonses had been sent to the envoys, who were absent from Dresden, to return there for a final sitting. The general result of the debates on the press haw, going forward in the Second Chamber, promised the restoration of most of the provisions of the Upper House, which will render them equal to the most despotio press laws in Europe.

will render them equal to the most despotic press laws in Europe.

The accounts from Madrid are to the first of May. A Carlist conspiracy had been discovered in Catalonia. Seven persons were arrested, but on their way to prizon were brutally shot by the soldiers, on the plea of attempting to escape.

Advices from Vienna usention that a note had been forwarded to Constantinophe, in which the detention of fourteen of the Hungarian fugitives was demanded for two years longer. Austria of fered to bear the expenses of their minitenance. Telegraphic news from Tuscany state that the work of reaction was in full swing in that State. A triand Ducal ordinance bad been fisued, empowering the police to place all persons suspected of an intention to disturb the public peace; under a surveillance, and even to deprive them of their liberty for the space of a year, if necessary. The proclamation contains other and equally despotic decrees.

Politics are very dull at this moment; and if we had not every morning the opinions of the newspa-pers to revive the public excitement, one would believe that all parties are quiet, and on the qui vive for semething else, without employing any other means but intrigue. Unfortunately, the Paristan press plays the part of a pair of bellows, blowing all the time on the burning wood, to render the confa-gration more terrible, if possible. The re-opening of the Legislative Assembly. which took place on Thursday last, offered a very mexpected series of peaceful meetings, during which no affair of much interest was discussed. All the votes have been on matters connected with railways or agriculture, the administration of departments, regulations of all kind, and laws for the general welfare. It seems, at this moment, that the eloquence of our orators, the lungs of our statesmen, are at rest, taking a necessary repose in order to possess all the strength which will be required in a fortnight, when the long-announced proposition for the revision of the constitution will be produced. This will be, in fact, the gordian knot. But whe will cut it? Who will dare to take upon his own shoulders the power to decide upon a matter of such shoulders the power to decide upon a matter of such high interest? I feel persuaded, from all that I hear, that the debate will be as desperate as is anticipated. We shall see.

While all this statu quo holds, the partisans of Louis Napoleon are doing all in their power to secure votes in favor of the revision of the constitution. One of the most important steps taken by the Elystons, is that of Mons. de Persigny, who is well known in the political circles as the a 'terego of Louis Napoleon. It appears that either with the permission of the President, or by his own intention, he called a few days ago on General Changarnier, who, since the withdrawal of his command of the troops in Paris, dwells in a small apartment in the Fanbourg de Honoré. The intimes of the old soldier, who knew well by their friend the result and details of that interview, have rendered public all the particulars of the conversation which took place between the two statesmen. How unfortunate, said Mi de Persigny to the General, "that such a great man, as you are should be obliged to dwell in such a simple house!" It appears, answered the General, with much wit, "that it was necessary for my political ensmies to see me in a small place, to make them understand that I am a great man." 'I may say," roplied M. de Persigny, "that it is much to be regretted that the men of intellect have not understood the particulation of the tenth of December, 1848. If they had shouldered the Presi-plied M. de Persigny, "that it is mush to be regretted that the men of intellect have not understood the perice of the election of the tenth of December. 1848. If they had shouldered the President, there was a way to create a very great and durable empire." And then he continued, wishing to convince the General that he ought to sacrifice the resentment he felt against Louis Napoleon for having turned him out of his command, on the "altar of the country;" that Franze was in favor of the solution; and that General Changarnier ought to rank on the side of France. The noble soldier answered to the emissary of the Prince, that his sword was ready to protect France and the National Assembly, to the service of which it only belonged. But M. de Persigny having replied that the Assembly had been humbled, and was to remain so, General Changarnier told him that he could not hear him any lorgor, and they separated without exchanging further words. This, I may say, is a defeat, an echoc, received by the Elysce, and it is not considered a very good omen for the prospects of Louis Napoleon, on the revision of the constitution and the prorogation of powers.

Before this grand affair will take place, the Benaparte fambly produce a long bill against the public treasury, which, if considered due to the parties, would augment a great deal the French debt. It appears that Jerome Bonaparte, the actual Governor of the invalides, has thought proper to claim a sum of 245,833 francs, being the amount of money owed to him for his salary as General of Brigade since 1815, from the battle of Waterlos think it probable, for I understand, from a reliable source, that there is another bill ready to be presented by the President himself, which will be in favor of a payment of 5,000 francs a year, since 1815, being due to him for his rank of Grand Cardon of the Legion of Honor. And last, not the least, M. Lucien Murat, the ex-American citizen, now a Franch Pilace of the Republic, wishes to be restored to the proprietorship of the palaces of the inheritance of his father, Joachim Murat, to whom Napaleon to Grand had given all this rich income. I am induced to believe that all these retrospective claims will receive a negative answer at the Mational Assembly.

The anniversary of the 4th of May is very near, and many preparations of all sorts are made, to celebrate that day in a gorgeous style. All the Parisian press have published a sort of manifesto, which was pretended, by the Elysian papers, as having been written by the socialists, with the object or calling their associates to arms, in order to create a row, and then to make, if possible, a revolution on the occasion of that gala day. I have very carefully read that provocation, and I may say with much confidence, that it was never written by the leading men of the party. They are, indeed, too cunning to commit themselves in that way. More still—I am induced to believe that this incendiary pamphlet is the work of the government, whose intentien was to find an occasion to revive the war against the party. As far as to-day, this provocation, instead of reviving the dispute, has hed the contrary effect, and all the newspapers which are in favor of the republic, have published to keep quiet, and not to try a foolish experiment, which would turn against them. Therefore, I am convinced that no émente will take place on the 4th of May. The festival will be, as usual, gorgeous, splendid—without any equal in the world—but as penceable as ever.

On the other side, it is said that the Décembrises will assemble on the 5th instant, on the occasion of the death of Napoleon the Great, after the ceremony which will take place on Monday next, at the Invalides, at which Louis Napoleon will be present. According to my reports, a grand dinner party will take place in the grand salon of the Marichaux, in the Tulleries. Much champague has been already sent to the palace, and no doubt it will be disask with the honors. More anon.

Disunion is said to exist already in the ranks of the new ministry. M. Leon Faucher and M.
